Stand Tall, Be Proud	Stop, Walk, Talk

Just as we will talk to our students about what those behaviors look like in the classroom, in the hallway, in the cafeteria, on the bus, in the bathroom, on the playground, and during assemblies and field trips, you can talk to them about what these behaviors look like at home. For instance a child is acting responsibly when they complete homework; put away their belongings and when they do chores. They give respect when they respond to adult by using words like “okay” or “I will.” They listen attentively when they wait to speak until an adult has finished speaking. A child is encouraging others when they comfort a sibling who may be upset or congratulate them when they have done something well. They Stand Tall, Be Proud when they include others in activities and stand up for someone. When you praise your child be specific and tell them exactly what they did that was responsible, respectful, listening, encouraging, and standing tall.

We will reward students for displaying these positive behaviors at school and we thought as parents/guardians you might be interested in rewarding these behaviors at home as well. If you would like to tie our school Eagle Expectations to Home expectations, we have attached a blank expectation chart for you to try at home. With your children, fill in the chart with the skills you expect at home in each area.

PBIS is a positive approach to discipline. State positive skills; acknowledge the skills when demonstrated; address them the skills when they aren’t demonstrated.

Some suggestions for home rewards include:

- Read a story to your child
- Have your child read to you
- Stay up 10 minutes past bedtime
- Cook them their favorite dinner
- Extra computer time
- Play a board game or complete a puzzle
- Get out of chores for a week
- Play a game of catch outside with the family member of their choice
- Watch their favorite movie
- Help cook dinner
- Go for a walk outside together
- Leave a congratulatory note for them in their lunch or on the refrigerator.
- Color or draw with your child
- Send a positive note to the teacher/principal about the good job they are doing at home.
